

Andrew Follows is a photographer with retinitis pigmentosa, a degenerative disease that renders him legally blind. He is totally blind in one eye and the sight in the other is progressively declining. This hasn't stopped him pursuing his passion for photography. Andrew's world opened for him three years ago with the help of his now best friend Eamon, his guide dog. It is difficult not to be impressed by what Andrew can see, through the eye of his lens. "He captures the essence of everyday life that many of us simply take for granted".
